

Heather Woodke, DVM, MA

Dr. Woodke is a companion animal relief veterinarian currently practicing in Seattle, Washington, USA. Her passion for non-human animals and their well-being in a human-dominated world has driven her work at home and abroad with a variety of domestic and wildlife species. Whether advocating for companion animal patients in practice and in public policy, or partnering with wildlife conservation groups to promote in-situ conservation efforts, she is ever curious and learning how we, as veterinarians can improve in our roles as welfare advocates.

Zookeeper - Woodland Park Zoo, Cougar Mountain Zoo (1988-1998)

Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine - WSU CVM (2002)

International Wildlife Conservation - Jardin Gaia, Costa Rica (1999), Phnom Tamao Rescue Center/Geraldine Dodge Frontiers for Veterinary Medicine Fellow, Cambodia (2000), Wildlife Conservation Society/Belize Zoo (2002)

President Magpie Mobile Vet, Inc - mobile small ruminant medicine and surgery specializing in camelids, companion animal relief (2003-present)

Spokane Humane Society Board of Directors (2007-2011)

Master of Arts in Bioethics and Humanities, University of Washington